Reminder of All-Encompassing Creative Love

This message is for all souls who feel addressed. For all souls who are currently on the Earth plane of consciousness, evolving through their personal, creative nature to their creative light.

This message is not new; rather, it has existed since the beginning of this creation and until its illuminating, until it is filled with knowledge.

It applies to all creatures who wish to live as purifiers on this earth; who, as the greatest gift of creation, have been given free will, which drives them.

This message aims to make known to all who can grasp it that the pursuit of spiritual wealth is the sole and true reason for our existence.

And it is not worldly success in life that counts, which only makes us seemingly rich.

All over the earth, there have always been people who strove for spiritual wealth and lived accordingly.

To achieve this, they sought out the appropriate places that creation had intended for them, based on the principle of resonance.

These usually had a connection to the final heaven, for only in this way can creative energies be of profound spiritual help to people.
In this way, people at all times have been ideally supported in living a life in harmony with all of creation.

Since the energy level in our consciousness has been rapidly deteriorating over the past centuries, it is more important than ever for people who are looking for creative help today to seek out suitable places.

Personally, I wouldn't want to do without it. I can even say that I wouldn't be able to do my energetic work at all if I didn't live in this special place.

Jürgen Hummes, shamanic counselor for 27 years and author of this text

I repeatedly experience that people these days have little willingness to consider energetic aspects when choosing a location.

This is probably because very few people have the necessary sensitivity. Thus, they make their decisions based on material aspects. The primary concern shouldn't be the visual impression they have of a place; the question should be:

Can creative help reach me there or not?

Every single person reading this carries the spiritual creative power within them and is therefore a spiritual being.

It is the task of each individual to recognize their creative nature and to consciously and humbly express it in the material world. Through this, everyone can bring light to life.

Those who consistently follow this path to the end will be able to unite their personal spiritual creative power with the entire creative power. Thus, a more loving world could emerge from this earth.

You freely chose this life, this task. You determined the time and freely chose your parents and thus your task.

This is not a coincidence, as some may believe, or even an accident; rather, this decision was made quite consciously by your soul, your spiritual creative power.

Before this life, you were equipped with everything necessary to lead a successful, spiritual life.

I often refer to this "spiritual equipment" with which we entered this life as our "snapsack." At the time of our birth, it contains everything that is important to us in this reincarnation.

Who might be to blame if we have lost or broken important "special tools," perhaps even exchanged them for worthless glass beads?

Those who seek worldly success are all too often very disappointed by this life, because we humans are not meant for it. They have simply backed the wrong horse.

You, and thus all people, are spiritual beings who can and should develop into spirit beings in order to achieve enlightenment as the crowning achievement. Every person carries a soul (their personal spiritual creative power) within them, and it is our task to become aware of its nature again.

Achieving creative consciousness means remembering one's fundamental creative nature.

Once we have achieved this, once our origins are present again, spirit can emerge from soul.

Every practical and mental experience you have in the classroom of Earth helps you develop into what your soul aspired to before this life.

You should therefore learn to correctly understand all the experiences you are allowed to have, that is, to classify them in order to gain spiritual wealth from them.

This, in turn, means that spirit develops from your soul, and you can thus become a spirit being.

The energy of primordial good, for example, can help you with this. Primordial good is the totality of all positive spirit that your soul has created in its various reincarnations.

The existing spirit is located above the head at the crown chakra over the course of a lifetime and remains there until, ideally, the entire soul has become spirit.

This then flows back into the physical body so that it can influence your entire organism.

The goal is for you to experience things with your entire organism so that the resulting spirit can develop further and ultimately become holy spirit.

Once this has been fully achieved, the spirit can separate from the physical body. It has then developed into creative power that has become light and has become like its spiritual model.

Both can now unite and enter the final heaven as a perfect duality. There, in the final heaven, this duality connects with a light energy with which it resonates absolutely.

The duality of creative power that has become light and its spiritual model merges with this light energy and becomes a triad.

Such a triad can remain in the final heaven or choose to flow into a level of consciousness as a so-called avatar to support purifiers on their path to becoming light.

Avatars are absolutely light, pure energies and thus incorruptible.

The most famous avatar here is probably Jesus Christ.

He was not a human being, but rather, as an avatar, he took on a human form in order to better manifest himself and spread the teachings of light. Therefore, he did not die on the cross. To this day, he continues to work as an avatar among humanity.

You should remember that your organism is something unique: your body, your mind, your soul, and your spirit.

When I speak of spirit here, I mean the positive spirit, that is, the energy a human brain produces whenever it functions in harmony with its own soul.

Body, mind, soul, and positive spirit are uniquely interconnected.

It is this unique connection that allows only humans on this earth to experience in a very special way, allowing light to emerge through it.

On this earth, it is truly reserved only for us humans to undergo this development from shadow to light.

For the sake of completeness, I would like to mention here that only we humans "need" this, because the soulfulness in everything else, be it the elements, animals, plants, or minerals and ores, is already pure light.

We humans therefore have the opportunity to develop to the highest level, at least theoretically. In practice, things aren't looking so rosy at the moment regarding the success rate of the purifying species, HUMAN…

In addition to the already very complex physical body, you are equipped with senses: sight, hearing, smell, taste, touch, and intuition. Via the nerve branch in the heart, your soul transmits impulses to the pineal gland.

This, in turn, controls the limbic and endocrine systems. You possess spatial and abstract thinking.

You are capable of experiencing a wide variety of emotions. Ideally, they arise in your soul, but all too often also in your mind.

Then, unfortunately, they do not correspond to your spiritual creative power. I would like to explain the following: From a creative perspective, everything is closely connected and interwoven.

Nothing stands alone; everything is interdependent. Our human mind, however, dissolves this connection and separates when seduced.

This entire complex and highly sensitive organism is connected to your soul, your spiritual creative power. Incidentally, your organism is the physical image of your soul.

All of this defines you as a unique human being who can, may, and perhaps even should develop into a spiritual being, the image of your spiritual role model.

In your deepest subconscious, you know all of this. But there are forces that want to and can deter you from your destiny in very different ways.

They all express themselves through the Matrix, which has expanded around us like a single, giant spider web, thickening daily and obstructing our view of creative truth.

We all believe the Matrix to be real, but it isn't; it's a cunning deception fueled by illusions.

Our creative reality has been "hacked" by dark forces. That's what a computer scientist would probably call it, and it's quite apt.

I call this artificial and falsified version of our world the Matrix. We are fooled into believing that the Matrix is real.

The Matrix could only come into being because its "makers" destroyed real spiritual constructs and replaced them with artificial spiritual constructs using stolen soul parts.

Thus, lights of creative love hardly illuminate our path anymore; instead, we are surrounded by will-o'-the-wisps, all of which originate from the Matrix.

And that makes it so difficult for you to be what you truly are: "a spiritual being."

Every spiritual creative force is individual. Here on Earth, they exist in matter, which repeatedly falls into disharmony and can thus become manipulable and egotistical.

Through this manipulation, it is possible to misuse creative forces so that they act against each other, creating chaos and confusion.

Opposing forces do this deliberately and intentionally in order to further expand the matrix, as explained above.

You only allow all of this to happen because you can no longer perceive your creative task within yourself. Perhaps you no longer want to.

Recognizing it and living by it is not always easy; in fact, it is probably the hardest thing a person can undertake in this day and age.

Above all, it means taking personal responsibility for one's thoughts and actions.

Every time we have a certain creative perception but still don't act consistently on this impulse, we lose contact with our spiritual creative power:

Whenever we don't act according to our soul, we thereby reject corresponding soul parts.

You suffer "soul loss," secretly, quietly, and silently. Tragically, we humans usually don't even notice it.

Why do soul parts have to leave a human shell?

Because they have become defenseless within our entire organism. Therefore, we leave them no other option than to flee — hoping to find an energetic safe haven.

Many soul parts, however, are intercepted beforehand by dark forces that are just waiting for such a thing to happen. They are then misused in artificial constructs to supply the matrix with energy.

The more soul parts a person loses in this way, the more they succumb to the confusion of their mind. This confusion in our minds is nothing other than a product of our society, which in turn is closely linked to the matrix.

Whereas, the communication of our spiritual creative power from the source of all being rests.

However, if you do not develop into a spiritual being, as unfortunately most people on this Earth do, but instead slide ever deeper into confusion, you contribute to the fact that the manipulative energy field of the Matrix continues to grow and intensify around the Earth through negative thoughts and actions.

Thus, the Matrix continues to expand.

Its negative energy field could lead to us humans no longer being able to live within this level of consciousness, as has long been prophesied by various ancient cultures and peoples.

I myself repeatedly speak of spiritual collapse in this context.

In addition, you are living this life more or less in vain, your soul is being forced into another reincarnation instead of being given the opportunity to unite with the all-encompassing Creative Love.

You bear responsibility, not only for yourself, but also for this creation, as you are a part of it.

Talking your way out of it and excusing yourself by saying, for example, that you live an environmentally conscious life is far from sufficient. This is usually learned, which means that in this case we copy something or imitate what has been done externally.

Therefore, from a spiritual perspective, it has no meaning whatsoever, even if we do the “right” thing.

The only thing that matters is whether the impulse comes from within us, that is, from the depths of our soul. Because only when you act from the drive of your own soul can spiritual wealth develop.

Only in this way can you express creative impulses from your deepest inner being in everyday life. I call the energy that your brain creates in this process positive spirit.

However, this only ever happens when you have recognized yourself and consciously live the energy of your soul.

Become aware that your soul parts represent unique, irreplaceable building blocks, regardless of whether they are expressed within the creative reality or outside it - that is, whether they are misused to expand the matrix.

You alone decide whether your soul parts contribute to bringing light into this world or whether they help the dark side plunge it even deeper into chaos.

Actively and consciously advocate for your soul and start today. There is no more time to waste. Then you are, then you would be, an active spiritual being.

This is information from the spiritual world for all who can grasp it.
